150-Word Bio

Evangelos Spanos is a pianist and composer whose work spans solo performance, collaborative piano, transcriptions, and original music for dance and multimedia projects. He has appeared in performance contexts connected with American Ballet Theatre, Works & Process at the Guggenheim, and other dance and concert platforms, bringing a musician's sensitivity to movement, phrasing, and dramatic structure. His artistic practice connects classical repertoire with contemporary collaboration, including music for ballet, chamber performance, video, and audio projects. As a pianist, Spanos is noted for performances that support dancers while maintaining a clear musical profile. As a composer, he creates work shaped by rhythm, gesture, and atmosphere. His website gathers selected performances, original works, recordings, press coverage, and contact information for presenters, collaborators, choreographers, media, and audiences interested in his creative and performance work across stage, studio, educational residencies, digital formats, and interdisciplinary artistic partnerships internationally with musicians, dancers, and presenting organizations worldwide.
